

INDIANS LIVED HERE LONG BEFORE THE WHITE MAN CAME. (No one knows when nor from where they came.) Arrowheads they made can still be found. According to Indian legend, storms never destroy towns built at the forks of rivers. Hattiesburg was once called Twin Forks because of its location where the Bouie and Leaf Rivers join. From the Bouie Street bridge, LOOK FOR the twin forks these rivers make.